

5. Degree Programs for Doctoral Students

5-2. Summary Table of Doctoral Programs

| Period                           | Program   | Accepted students             | Field of research   | Degrees offered  | Director in charge | Details (Reference URL)  |
|----------------------------------|---|-------------------------------|---|--|--------------------|--|
| 5 years (MA.+ Ph.D.)             | Policy AnalysisDesigned for students to use economics methodology to research and analyze real-world policy issues, in a five year period (three years for well qualified candidates)   | Japanese and foreign students | Economics   | Ph.D. in Public EconomicsPh.D. in Development EconomicsMaster of Arts in Public EconomicsMaster of Arts in Development Economics | Leon-Gonzalez      | Policy Analysis Program   National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS)                           |
|                                  | GRIPS Global Governance (G-cube)Designed to produce a new type of leader who can resolve problems faced by the world today in the government, business, and international arenas by equipping students with a broad historical and cultural perspective, strong analytical ability, and effective communication skills.   | Japanese and foreign students | Political Science, Economics, Area Studies, History, Security and International Studies | Ph.D. in Public PolicyPh.D. in International RelationsPh.D. in International Development StudiesMaster of Arts in Public Policy  | Takahashi          | GRIPS Global Governance Program (G-cube)   National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS)          |
| 3 years (Ph.D., doctoral degree) | Disaster ManagementDesigned for professionals who can educate researchers and take leadership in the planning and implementation of national/international strategies and policies in the field of water-related risk management.   | Japanese and foreign students | Disaster Management   | Ph.D. in Disaster Management   | Ozawa              | Disaster Management Program   National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS)                       |
|                                  | Science, Technology and Innovation PolicyDesigned to give government officials and practitioners the skills needed to apply a scientific approach to the design, implementation and evaluation of policies and strategies related to science, technology and innovation; and to train other professionals to become experts in the theory and practice of policymaking. | Japanese and foreign students | Science, Technology and Innovation Policy   | Ph.D. in Public Policy   | Hayashi            | Science, Technology and Innovation Policy Program   National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS) |
|                                  | Policy ProfessionalsDesigned to enable government officials, media personals, and other practitioners to develop their policy analysis skills through a case study approach.  | Japanese students             | Case studies  | Doctor of Policy StudiesPh.D. in Government  | Iio                | Policy Professionals Program   National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS)                      |