Description: The security and economic prosperity of the United States depend on the stability and integrity of government communications and information infrastructure. Threats to cyberspace pose some of the most serious challenges of the 21st century for the United States. In order to address the continuously changing environment of threats to cybersecurity defenses, the U.S. federal government must continue its vigorous advancement of technical and policy protection capabilities for national systems, to expand partnerships with the private sector, and to work with Congress to clarify roles and responsibilities.

Mansfield Fellow Daniel Craven will present an introduction to the U.S. government’s approach to securing federal government information and systems based on his experience serving as a Senior Information Technology Specialist with the U.S. Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Mr. Craven’s presentation will include an introduction to the US Federal Government, the key cybersecurity requirements (such as the Federal Information Security Modernization Act (FISMA)), the Risk Management Framework used by agencies to secure systems, and the role of Federal Offices of Inspector General in securing federal systems.

Yasuyuki Watanabe, an associate professor at the National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies, will serve as a moderator for the event. Following is his curriculum vitae. He was the Deputy Director to Task Force for Postal Service Privatization at Cabinet Secretariat in 2004. He joined Ministry of Internal Affairs and Communications in 2005 as the Deputy Director, Personnel and Pension Bureau. He was the Deputy Director to Task Force for National Civil Service Reform at Cabinet Secretariat in 2007. He worked as Special Advisor to Osaka Prefecture in 2010, Deputy Mayor to Takatsuki City in 2010 and also Deputy Mayor to Nasushiobara City in 2012. He joined GRIPS in 2015 as an associate professor.

The National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies

GRIPS was established in October 1997, superseding the Graduate School of Policy Science (GSPS) at Saitama University, which was the first graduate school for Policy Studies in Japan. GRIPS is a government-sponsored graduate school and research institute which has been restructured into an entirely new and unique entity. GRIPS aims to be an international center of excellence for the education of future leaders in the policy arena, for the advancement of policy research, and for the systematic collection and dissemination of policy-related information. In order to accomplish these aims, a Graduate School, a Policy Research Center and a Policy Information Center have been established. GRIPS is the first graduate school without facilities for undergraduates in Japan in the wider disciplines of social science. GRIPS is located in Roppongi, Tokyo, with easy access to the political and business headquarters of Japan.

The degree programs are designed to attract outstanding students and thoroughly prepare them for distinguished careers in policy setting. After a period of thorough preparation since its foundation in 1997, GRIPS welcomed its first domestic students in April 2000, followed six months later by the first international students. About two-thirds of the student-intake of GRIPS consist of international students coming from over sixty countries in Asia, Africa and Eastern Europe. Our students normally have three to five years working experience for governments, central banks, custom offices or other relevant organizations. The International Programs at GRIPS are conducted solely in English, while Domestic Programs are taught in Japanese.

GRIPS aims to be the center of a consortium, consisting of industry, government and academia, for the exchange of information, ideas and personnel among graduate schools, government-related institutes and private research institutes in Japan. In addition, through its international faculty, student body and alumni, and by promoting international exchange of policy research and information, GRIPS aims to establish an international network among academics and government officials in the field of policy studies, contributing to the promotion of a better understanding among peoples around the world in an age of globalization.

The Maureen and Mike Mansfield Foundation

The Maureen and Mike Mansfield Foundation was created in 1983 to advance Maureen and Mike Mansfield's life-long efforts to promote understanding and cooperation among the nations and peoples of Asia and the United States. The Foundation sponsors exchanges, dialogues and publications that create networks among U.S. and Asian leaders, explore the underlying issues influencing public policies, and increase awareness about the nations and peoples of Asia. The Mansfield Foundation's geographic focus is Northeast Asia and India as it relates to that region. The Foundation receives support from individuals, corporations and philanthropic organizations. It also provides support to The Maureen and Mike Mansfield Center at the University of Montana.

The Mansfield Fellowship Program - named after Mike Mansfield, former U.S. ambassador to Japan, U.S. Senate majority leader, and U.S. congressman from Montana - is a first-of-its-kind program for the United States and Japan. The U.S. Congress created the Mansfield Fellowships in 1994 to build a corps of U.S. federal government employees with proficiency in the Japanese language and practical, firsthand knowledge about Japan and its government. During the one-year program in Japan, Fellows develop an in-depth understanding of Japan's government and policymaking process and establish relationships with their counterparts in the government of Japan and the business, professional and academic communities. The Mansfield Fellowships are administered by the Maureen and Mike Mansfield Foundation, with the United States Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, as grantor.

The Foundation has offices in Washington, D.C., Tokyo, Japan, and Missoula, Montana.
